

QEW POLICY

Quality – Environment – Work environment

The Benders group of companies has drawn up a quality, environment and work environment policy. The policy, which highlights our values and focus areas, shall help us prioritise and take decisions ensuring that legislatively imposed demands and the requirements of customers and other stakeholders are fulfilled.

All QEW (quality, environment and work environment) initiatives are integrated into our daily work. They are also detailed in the company's management system. Our QEW initiatives are founded on systematic management to: reduce the risks of errors, care for the environment and occupational ill health and accidents; and, to create the right conditions for the continuous improvement of operations.

Our products are made and inspected in accordance with the applicable standards. Each employee contributes to our quality and to customer satisfaction. All work shall be based on: getting things right from the start; tackling any shortcomings where they arise; and, finding long-term solutions for problems so that they do not occur again.

Management and staff members shall have the environmental competence required to proactively prevent work that protects the environment in the long term. Consideration and respect for the environment shall be natural parts of our operations. So that our products have minimal negative environmental impact throughout their life cycles, environmental issues shall be addressed in collaboration with suppliers and business partners.

We at Benders put every effort into carrying out operations in such a way that our workplaces are safe and so that there are no negative influences on people's health. To the greatest extent possible, employees shall be active in shaping and improving their work situations. Workplace conditions shall give employees the opportunity to develop on both the personal and professional planes.
